

Changes and Future Challenges of Learning About Older People in Home Economics of Senior High School : Description Analysis of Course of Study and Textbooks for Senior High School

Takuya NIHASHI

Setagaya Gakuen Junior and Senior high school

Abstract

The purpose of this study is to focus on Home Economics education in senior high school, and to examine how the learning contents of the older people have been captured and how the future learning of the older people should be done. For that purpose, I explained the Course of Studies and Home Economics textbooks.

As a result, it was revealed that learning about the “welfare of older people” “living of older people” was regarded as important through an analysis period by the Course of Study. “Cooperation with other generations” came to be listed from 2009, and the “Relationship with older people” “support of older people” came to be listed from 1999.

As for the “household of older people “independence support and welfare service ““understanding to an older people generation of the everyday life” have listed in textbook since 1988. At was revealed that “the collaboration with an area and the society” listed from 1999.

Key words; senior high school, course of study, textbook, older people, text mining